Sadat orders cabinet reshuffle, praises Carter's principles

CAIRO, May 2 (R). - President Anwar Sadat today described Arab critics of his Middle East peace initiative as "political teenagers." He said he remained committed to Arab solidarity and was prepared to resume diplomatic relations with the five Arab states with which Egypt broke ties after they attacked his peace move.

Mr. Sadat drew cheers from 20,000 workers in e Cairo suburb when he said in a speech that he was ordering e cabinet reshuffle.

The government changes, hich well-informed sources said would not affect either the foreign or defence ministries, will follow expressions of public impatience with the government's conduct of domes-tic affairs. Indications were that Prime Minister Mamdouh Salem would retain his post

Mr. Sadat praised President Carter for his Middle East peace efforts and called the U.S. leader a man of principles. But the Egyptian president accused Israeli premier Menachem Begin of being intransigent. Mr. Sadat elso said Egypt's peace initiative was constantly growing. He said the trouble with Israel was that it still did not have the courage to take the necessary decisions following his visit to Jerusalem last No-vember. "It is the earthquake of my peace initiative -> they still seem to be shaken by it,

Israel was trying to see bow it could reduce the effect of Egypt's peace moves, but the whole world, including thousands of Israelis, now support-ed Egypt, and this should be e warning to Israel, be said. The five Arah countries critical of Mr. Sadet's peece initiative were Iraq, Syria, Alge-Jamahiriyah ria, the Libyan and South Yemen

Mr. Sadat said Egypt had no objection to the holding of an Arab summit conference to settla Arab differences. But he said he wanted results, not an exchange of insults.

Allay fears

Mr. Sadat's praise of President Carter came two days after Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel esked for an explanation of remarks ettributed to the U.S. leader in which he was reported to have firmly rejected the creation of an independent Palestinian state.

But yesterday, U.S. Ambas-sador to Cairo Hermann Ellts tried to allay Egyptian fears that Mr. Carter was changing American policy on the Middle East and specially stressed that the U.S. did not consider the Begin plan e suitable basis for e settlement Mr. Sadat said of Mr. Car-

These principles were full Israeli withdrawel from occupied (Arah) territories and the right of Palestinians to selfdetermination and to establish their state on their land, he

"We shall never give up th-ese principles," Mr. Sadat ad-ded.

Hard work

The last Egyptian government reshuffle occurred in last November 1977, when the then-Foreign Minister, Ismail Fahml, resigned in opposition to President Sadat's visit to Jerusalem.

Mr. Sadat said the ministers in the resbuffled cabinet should responsibilities and not be a afraid to take

"Being a minister today is not an amhition or a goal in ltself, it is hard work," he said. The ministers should face criticism both inside and outsida the People's Assembly (parliament).'

Ministers should not be afrald or be influenced by "inte-llectual terrorism," Mr. Sadat said in an apparent reference to press campaigns particularly in opposition newspepers, against various government departments.

He gave no details of the ministries he wanted changed but well-informed sources have sald foreign affairs and defence would not be affected.

Opposition press reports had suggested that Premier Salem would be replaced. But since Mr. Sadat said he was asking the prime minister himself to reshuffle the cabinet, analysts said replacement of Mr. Salem could now be ruled out.

Mr. Sadat said the reshuffled government would have to devote its efforts to increas-ing production, lowering prices and raising wages.

Welcome solidarity

President Sadat said he was still committed to Arab solidarity and was prepared to resume diplomatic relations with Arab states which ettacked his peace initiative.
'I have welcomed and will welcome all efforts exerted now to restore Arah solidarity," he said

Mr. Sadat said any summit must define an Arab position and an Arah policy. "One thing we will not accept is having the Egyptian people insulted for their sacrifies and the eco-nomic difficulties they live un-der while others -- bow ironic .- live in luxury."

The president said that although Israel had offered to return "99 per cent of Sinai" - Egypt hed refused, pending Israeli agreement to withdraw from occupied Arab territory on all three fronts and recognise Palestinian rights President Sadat spoke at length about his peace initiative, which he described as an earthquake and more specta-cular than the U.S. landing on the moon

He said it had unmasked "all those deceiving arguments Israel was trying to force on wo-rld opinion." It had the support of the whole world and tens of thousands in Israel itself, be said.

"This should be a warning to Israel that it cannot retu-rn to the situation as it was before the peace initiative," he

Brighter prospect for jet sales

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP). - Prospects for U.S. congressional approval of President Carter's proposed Mideast jet-fighter sale have improved since the administration dropped the words "all-ornothing package," Senate majority leader Robert C. Byrd sald Saturday. Byrd said he supports the $4.8 billion sale of 60 F-15e to Sandi Arabia, 59 F-5Es to Egypt and 75 F-16s and 15 F-15s to Israel. But, he said, even with the administration's strategy change, winning Congressional approval for all three deals "is going to be a difficult matter."

According to the Ministry, former President James Mancham and three ex-cabinet ministers were involved in the plot.

Three held in hunt for Moro kidnappers

ROME, May 2 (R). — Police hunting Red Brigade guerril-las today detained three men, one of them said to be e friend of e suspected Moro kidnapper.

They seized Libero Maesa-no, 28, as he was talking to his mother and sister in the Rome suburb of Eur and then caught two men as they tried to run away, police sources said. The two were not immediately named.

Maesano was identified as a possible Red Brigades member at the political office of the Rome police, where inves-tigators said he was a friend of Valerio Morucci, wanted for the kidnapping of former Pre-mier Aldo Moro on March 16.

They said Maesano was expelled from Switzerland five years agn with Morucci for possessing a mechine gun.

Police refused any official comment on the detentions but well-informed sources doubted that Maesano was directly in-volved in the Moro kidnapping.

Proposal Political leaders today discussed a proposal by Socialist Party secretary Bettino Cra-xi aimed et persuading the Red Brigades to free Mr. Moro. He was responding to emotional letters written hy the 61-year-old Christian Democratic Party president from captivity appealing for a prisoner exchange so he could be released.

A very bad show

from Mr Carter

Somebody should tell Jimmy Carter that the presidential campaign ended a year and a half ago, and he doesn't have to go around anymore saying silly things and making grandiose pledges that only embarrass and degrade him in the eyes of thinking people. For a man who appears to have summoned forth a refreshing amount of fortitude in his determination to get the Middle East military planes package sale through Congress, he has taken the visit of Israeli Premier Menachem Begin to the U.S.

as an opportunity to genuflect faithfully before the intentions -- has been thoroughly ungraceful, and possibly even inept. His pledge to Mr. Begin about guaranteeing Israel's security for ever and ever is something he hardly had a chance to avoid during Israel's 30th anniversary celebrations. But Mr. Carter is being sucked deeper into the maelstrom of Zionist security-consciousness, a maelstrom from which few obviously has military superiority over the Arabs today, and because the Arabs have come to accept the principle of Israeli statehood, in Resolution 242 and elsewhere. Thus for Mr. Carter to reach ever greater heights of drama and degrees of emphasis m pledging to support the security and survival of Israel is only a demonstration that Mr. Carter has fallen deeper and deeper into the Israeli web of "security". The question that holds up a Middle East peace is not Israel's security -- it is the Palestinians' rights and the occupation of Arab territory. And on both counts, it is the massive support of the United States that allows Israel to keep these matters

many faces and many moods. While there is wide spread feeling in the Arab World that he is a man of good intentions, Mr. Carter has the nasty habit of slipping back into his dazed state of pledging their insatiable security mania, not fall into it himself.

Attorney says Esmail was beaten by guards

Sami Esmail, an American aduate student on trial in Israel as an alleged member of a Palestinian guerrilla group, spent a week in solitary confinement and was beaten for complaining about prison co-nditions, his attorney asserted

Felicia Langer also claimed prison authorities had taken notes of her conversations with clients and charged this was an attempt to keep prisoners from complaining of overcrowding and poor food.

A prison authority spokes-man denied Esmail had been beaten. "We are unt beating prisoners," David Zilberman, assistant in the prison commissioner's office claimed. He said Esman, as an included in a security charge, He said Esmail, as an Ameri-

European Community signs accord to give $385 m. to world's poorest countries

BRUSSELS, Belgium May 2 (AP). The European Common Market has signed an agreement to contribute $385 million in special aid to the poorest countries of the world. It will be the largest contribution in a billion dollar package. The United States is giving $375 million and the rest will come from seven other countries: Japan, Canada, Sweden, Switzerland, Australia and Spain.

Danisb Foreign Minister K.

American Jews raise outcry over Arab-U.S. business meeting

LOS ANGELES, California May 2 (AP). - A two-day meeting hetween about 100 Arah husiness leaders and American executives has concluded amidst charges than the conferees are looking for ways to circumvent anti-boycott legislation The session here, which ended with a tour of Disneyland last Saturday, was part of a five-city U.S. tour by the Arab husiness leaders that began on April 18 in New York and concludes tomorrow in Chicago. Conference organisers said Playboy magazine publisher Hugh Hefner will host the group

The meetings at the downtown Hilton originally were closed to the press but were opened after the American Jewish Committee protested in a letter to the U.S.-Arah Chamber of Commerce and sponsoring companies.

"We are concerned that these meetings are meant to cir-sumvent the law," Neil Sandberg, Western Regional Director of the AJC, said. "We're pleased the meeting was open to the media. But we're going to continue to watch things very carefully to see that American companies do not circumvent the Sandberg contends that Arah countries have blacklisted American companies doing husiness within Israel and have tried to extend the boycott to their suppliers -- a so-called secondary hoycott. The recently passed Export Administration Act, which prohibits primary and secondary boycotts, was much oo the mind of delegates here.

"The Arah boycott is not of a racist or religious nature hut is a measure designed as defence," said Mohammad Ali Badeir, Chairman of the Federatioo of Jordanian Chambers of Commerce, who dalivered the Arab keynote address on Thursday, 'The boycott has not caused any damage to U.S.-Arab rela-tions and we are concerned that this law comes at this time." Dr. Weldon B. Gibson, Executive Director of SRI International, also referred indirectly to the boycott legislation in delivering the U.S. keynote address. "Perhaps we can find ways to ease the regulatory and legal problems that hamper us," Gibson said. "We are kindred souls with our Arah friends with our philsophy of the free enterprise

W. Jooes McQuinn, Vice President of Foreign Operations for Standard Oil of Califoroia, said both the United States and Arab nations have something to gain from expanded trade, "We are interested in the transfer of their valuable resource base, namely oil, for what we have to offer -- technology," McQuinn said. "For our part, we want to learn more about (oil) production and pricing policies from our Arab friends." Businessmen from Jordan, Saudi Arahia, Kuwait, Syria, the United Arah Emirates, Lebanon, Egypt Morocco, Lihya and Oman attended the conference. Among the companies participating were Bank of America, Bechtel Corp., Flour Corp., Lockheed Corp., and the Raiph M. Parsons Co.

LEAGUE BASEBALL MAJOR ROUNDUP

Philadelphia Phillies' triumph Cincinnati Reds made possible Pitcher Tom Seaver's personal defeat

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP).

— Tom Seaver's pitching woes continued last night. The Philadelphia Phillies pasted the three-time Cy Young award winner for seven runs in the two innings Seaver lasted and cruised to a 12-triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

Seaver, winless in six starts, suffered his third loss and saw his earned run average soar to 6.52

Phillies starter Steve Carlton had three hits, including a two-run single. That was three bits more than Reds veteran Pete Rose collected, leav-ing the third baseman four hits short of the 3,000-hit mil-estone. Rose went hitless in Johnny Bench mustered the only Cincinnati offence, slugging his fifth homer of the year in the seventh inning.

In the other National League contests, the San Francisco Giants trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1, the At-Ianta Braves beat the New York Mets 6-5 and the Pitts-hurgh Pirates defeated the San Diego Padres 7-4.

In American Leagua games, the New York Yankees came hack for an 8-4 triumph over the Kansas City Royals and the Boston Red Sox held on for a 9-6 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

Terry Whitfield doubled and scored from second base on Mark Littell's wild pitch in the eighth inning for the winning margin in San Francisco's victory over St. Louis.

The game was marred by a ninth-inning incident involving San Francisco's Bill Madlock and umcire Art Williams, who was behind the plate for the first time in a major league Madlock stepped out of the batter's box with the count 0-2. Williams ordered the batter back in position but Madlock ignored the directive. St. Louis relief pitcher Pete Vuckovich threw the ball and Williams called strike three. Madlock had to be restrained by Giants coaches from charging Williams, hut abused the arbiter verbally and was ejected.

Madlock was involved in a similar incident at St. Louis while a member of the Chicago Cubs in September 1975. Then-Cards reliever Al Hrab-osky delivered a third atrike while Madlock was out of the batter's box, provoking a bench-clearing brawl.

Jeff Burroughs and Biff Pocoroba had run-scoring hits in the eighth-inning rally which lifted the Braves over the Mets in a game marked by four baiks -- three by Atlanta pitch.

Singles by Phil Garner and relief pitcher Jim Bibby keyed the three-run eighth inning th at carried the Pirates past the Padres. It was only the second hit of Bibby's career. The pitcher had laboured in the American League, which employs the designated hitter to bat for pitchers. He had a sin. gle in 1972 while with the St. Louis cardinals.

Lou Piniella's singles delivered Thurman Munson with the go-ahead run in the eighth in-ning and Chris Chambliss added a two-run single to pace four-run hurst that gave New York its triumph.

Slugger Jim Rice hit a pair of two-run homers and the Red Sox survived a ninth-inning Baltimore rally tu record the.

Television joins police to distract Soviet youth from Easter services

MOSCOW, May 2 (R). - Soviet Television put on Western pop music until the early hours on Sunday in an apparent attempt to distract young people from Orthodux Easter ser-

Moscow churches were surrounded as usual by scores of uniformed police and civilian vigilantes wearing red arm

Old people and foreigners were allowed through to attend the traditional midnight services, but several young people re seen being turned away.

"You'd be better off at a dance," a policeman was over-heard telling one young Russian girl.

The unusual television programme, featuring star Swedish group Abba and a host of other performers, lasted until well after one o'clock -- although Soviet Televiston is usually off the air by midnight. Ironically, the line-up included British singer Cliff Richard. a practising Christian who slipped religious songs into his reportoire during a Soviet tour in 1976.

At Moscow's Yelokhovsky Cathedral, where the main

Easter service was held, plain clothesmen stood by the entrance checking identity documents. Russians had to show special passes to gain admissing to the crowded service, which was conducted by the head of the

Orthodox Church, Patriarch Pimen. In his Easter message the patriarch urged believers here and abroad to pray for the success of disarmament efforts and

"all good initiatives by the friends of peace." Until a few years ago young communist activists were allowed to jeer at worshippers and sometimes tried to disrupt

British Museum exhibit traces the lost world of our early ancestors

The discovery of primitive implements which our remote ancestors either used in attack or defence, in killing animals or in wresting food from the ground, tell us something, but not very much, about their social and economic practices. What is known will probably be found at a new permanent exhibition at the British

By Alec Forrest

LONDON, (LPS) - About three million yeers are believed to have elapsed between the emergence of man and his first attempts at metalworking. Artifacts, grave furnishings, wall charts and diagraillustrating technological progress -- slower than any snail's pace -- over this buge time span form a new permanent exhibition, Man Before Metals, at the British Museum,

The very earliest specimens are basalt and quartzite cho-pping tools. These, related to a world we can only guess at, reveal how our remotest ancestors suddenly experienced a gleam of light, intelligence perhaps, as they picked up likely looking stones and by cracking one agaiost aoothefound a tool or weapon for attack or defence, to kill an animal or cut up a skin,

Tools of survival

Imagine depending for your survival on any one of the quartzite choppers, cleavers aod hand axes displayed by tbe museum as Acheulean tools. These were found by the Kalambo Falls, Zambla, and are not so much rough as

By the Middle Palaeolithic Age, 100,000 to 300,000 years ago, man bad discovered how to knap flint to make hand axes, scrapers and hunting devices And 75,000 years ago, not only | was his use of flint. more sophisticated, but by 64,000 B.C. (B.C. here denotes dates derived from the physical method known as Carbon 14 dating) be was making needles - - taking a splinter from a bone, rounding it by scraoing with a serrrated flint, grinding it on a sandstone "rubber", burnishing the point and surface, and drilling the eye with a pointed flint. Thus a new handskill, that of stitch-craft. dawned. Throughout the Palaeolithic Period (Old Stone Age) the environment alone meintained buman beings. They took and caught what they needed without upsetting the balance of

But by about 6,000 B.C. fo-od producing Neolithic communities started to spread across Euroce from the Near East where farming bad developed over the previous 3,000 years. Small groups or tribes settled in regions where soil was rich, water supplies plentiful and the climate favourable. Techniques in crop rotation and stockbreeding called for new tools and new

Farming methods

It is largely through excavation by experts, sifting the soil almost centimetre by centimetre, that we get insights into primitive ferming practices. At South Street in Wiltshire. southwest England, a Neolithic Long Barrow (hurial mound) of about 2,500 B.C. had been built oo formerly cultivated land indicated by the criss cross pattern of furrows made by an ard or light plough. Being wooden, no actual ploughs of this date have been found, but we have a wide range of tools and equipment used for cultivation and food production.

Our ancestors used heavy: axes of flint and stone for woodland olearance. For cultivation they relied not only on ploughs but on antier boes and wooden digging sticks, a good example of which orig-lusted from Ehenside Tarn in Cumbria, northern England. Flint edged sickles were used harvesting cereal crops and when the corn was gethered they stored the grain in a pit or in large vessels and ground it into flour on stone city of the unfired clay together with the smooth surface of the pots once fired offered a medium for decoration of almost unlimited scope, and one which could be exploited in a domestic setting.

Riddle of the drums

Many visitors are astonished by relics which attest to the skills shown by orimitive peoples in meeting their physical needs and satisfying inner cravings; also their subjection to strange gods, superstitions or sucernatural be-liefs. The most surprising exhibit, and one which the British Museum's soecialists in the Department of Prehistoric and Romeno-British Antiquities cannot explaio. coosists of three beautifully incised chalk drums found beside the unburnt body of a child in e shallow erave at Folkton Wold in the north of Eneland. These solid cylinders, known as the Folkton Drums, are carved from magnesian limestone. They differ in decoration and dimensions, but each has sides divided into broad and narrow panels with an eve motif in two of the drums, which is perbaps also represented by e generalised squiggle on a third. Their tops are marked by circles and conceotric rings, the largest drum displaying also a star pattern.

According to the museum's evaluation: "The organisation and techniques of the decoration find their best match in pottery of the Grooved Ware style, datable between 2,400 and 1,600 B.C. More specific affinities with the geometric patterning occur on beaker and food vessel pottery, and sheet goldwork inspired by such ceramic traditions. This would suggest a dated with the Early Bronze Age, perbaps after 1,800 B.C."

But what of their functions? It is impossible to hold any firm view about their ritual, symbolic, decorative or even toy use. For the present their value lies in a no man's land nor art.

For all the modern archaeologist's resources, so much remains imprecise about prehistoric finds, including some of the most sensational, From Grime's Graves, in eastern England, the largest Neolithic flint minine complex in Europe, mystery centres on e tiny chalk figurine, that of a pregnant woman, found in one

We do not know, and probably never will. But what excites one at this exhibition is the sight of objects belonging to the lost world of our ancestors which were as vital to them as anything from cars to combine harvesters, television sets to telephones, which we cherish today, -

Would miracle working powers also be attributed to a "God-Dolly", a little carved wooden figure recovered from a trackway in western England, which occupies the same case in the museum as the goddess of Grime's?

There are choice examples of the earliest British pottery from 3,000 to 1,800 B.C. shown in juxtaposition with painted ware from the Ukraine. We have often stressed in this column that two chances are better thao one. But to take advantage of every opportunity, it is essential that you get the timiog right...

In support of spades North's hand revalued to 13 points, so his decision to make a jump raise of his partner's opening hid was sound. With first- or secondround control of all the side suits, South checked on aces and settled in a small slam when he discovered that one was missing.

West was reluctant to lead anything that might help declarer, so he selected a trump. When dummy came down, declarer saw that he could make his contract if either the ace of clubs or the king of diamonds was onside, for he could discard one of dummy's minor suit cards on the fourth round of hearts.

But which suit to play first? If he led a club and the ece was with West, the defenders could take two tricks in that suit. If he tried diamonds and the queen lost to the king, the defenders would get the ace of clubs as well. Declarer won the trumb in his hand and led another spede to dummy's king. Mentally tossing a coin, he elected to try the diamond finesse. Down one.

There was no need for declarer to subject himself to a guess. By playing his cards in the right order, he could avail himself of both opportunities.

After drawing the second trump with a high trump in his hand, declarer should play four rounds of hearts, sluffing a club from dummy. Now dummy is eotered by leading the seven of trumps to the eight, and declarer leads a club towards the king.

If this loses to the ace. declarer can reenter dummy with a club ruff and try the diamood finesse. As the cards lie, East has the ace of clubs, and if he does not take it now, he won't get it. But if he does, the defenders can't get, a diamond trick. East shifts to a diamond, but declarer rises with the ace and discards dummy's remaining diamond on the king of clubs, and the slam is home.

Afghanistan's new Communist appoint government leaders

NEW DELHI, May 2 (Agencies). -- The Communist-led Revolutionary Council, which seized power in Afghanistan in a bloody military coup last Thursday, has named the man who spearheaded the coup against President Mohammed Daoud as defence minister, Kabul Radio said today. He is Col. Abdul Khadir, Vice Commander of the air force. The radio, monitored here, said the council had appointed 20 ministers, including a vice-president and three deputy ministers.

The new regme is led by Nur Mohammed Tarakki, a pro-Soviet Commuoist leader, who became head of state and prime minister two days ago.

Badrak Karmai has been appointed vice president and deputy prime minister. Hafizul-lah Amir has been named deputy prime minister with responsibility for Foreign Affairs and Mohammed Afsal, deputy prime minister in charge of the Communications Ministry.

Mr. Karmal and Mr. Amir were senior officials of the pro-

PLO near White House

WASHINGTON, May 2 (R) — The Palestine Liberation Organisation has announced that it has opened an information office within a kilometre of the White House, as part of a public relations campaign.

The State Department immediately criticised the move, and department spokesman Hodding Carter said it was standing policy to discourage the opening of PLO information offices. The Carter administration refuses to deal directly with the PLO unless it agrees to recognise Israel,

Legal experts at the State and Justice Departments said there was no apparent way under the law to close the office. The office was opened three weeks ago but the announcement was made yesterday, as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin held talks with President Carter. Two Jordanians and an American were named as staff memoers of the Palestine Information Office in documents filed with the Justice Department. This is a mandatory step for any foreign-controlled organisation that intends lobbying or distributing pplitical propaganda.

Mr. Hussaini, once head of the Arab League Information Office in Washington, said in the documents that the PLO intended to present the Palestinian viewpoint to the American public and to government officials.

Moslem rebels hold

ZAMBOANGA CITY, Philippines, May 2 (R). — Muslem rebels are holding 37 people captive after seizing a ferry off this southern port city on Sunday night, military sources said today.

The coast guard said the captives were taken from the vessel by armed men to a hideway on nearby Basilan Island.

The men grounded the ferry on another island.
The Coast Guard said the ferry was intercepted by the gunmen riding in four fast motor boats an hour after it had left Zamboanga City, 840 kms, south of Manila. The rebels nre seeking regional autonomy for the southern Philippines. The Coast Guard said that after the ferry was taken to Basilan Island, the hostages were herded ashore and the vessel was stripped of its car-go before it was grounded. One crew member and a passenger were able to escape and report the incident. Military sources sald the navy had discovered where the rebel hideout was and a way. The place of captivity was apparently in the same reasonal area as the hideaway in which rebel kidnappers held French official Pierre Hugge for about three weeks after abducting him in Zamboang City at the end of February

He was released after the intervention of a representaintervention of a representa-tive of the Islamic nations. In 1976, rebels hijacked two Philippine domestic airliner. In the first hijacking three rehels managed to make they way to Libya. In the second in May, 1976, three rehels we ce killed and three captured when the domestic alring they took over blew up during a gun battle at Zamboanga City Airport.
